DRAGON

Can Bluey and her family find a dragon on their adventure?

"See what I mean?" says Dad, sketching a black and white picture of himself.

"Am I a good drawer?" asks Bluey. "You're a great drawer! But why have you got a sandwich stuck to your back?" asks Dad.

"They're fairy wings! Can't you tell?" says Bluey. "Ah, yeah. Of course! Well, if you can fly, then I'll need... a horse! This is Doug," says Dad. "Doug looks more like a donkey," says Bluey. "Yeah, horses are hard to draw," says Dad. Just then, Mum appears on a horse. "Can I join in?" she asks.

Bluey begins the story.
"Once upon a time, some friends all set off to find a dragon, when suddenly...

...a big round monster appears." "Woah! It's one of... those dudes," says Dad. "Don't you know what it is?" asks Bluey. "Humpty Dumpty?" asks Dad. "No, it's a dragon!" says Bingo.

"My hand's sore, can you draw it, Bluey?" asks Mum.
"Um... no," says Bluey.
So Dad tries to draw the wise tree. Then Bingo draws it and the tree throws them all in the air!

"I'm sorry, Mum. I'm not sure there IS a dragon any more," says Bluey as they camp for the night. So, Mum asks Bluey to cast a special spell on Dad...

Dad remembers being at school when he was 6 years old. "I loved drawing cars...

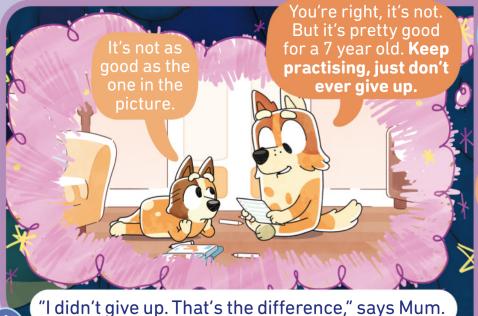

...then Bucky Dunstan, in my class, said...

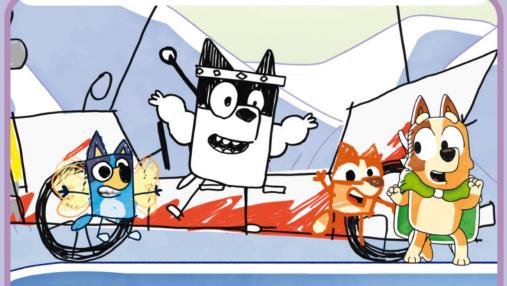

"Now do me," says Mum. "There I am, 7 years old, drawing horses. I could never get them to look right. But my mum, your Grandma, said..."

They fight the dragon, casting spells and dodging flames, turning the dragon into a purse, but then...
"The cave's collapsing!" says Mum. "We're doomed!" yells Bingo. "Hang on. What's this?" says Dad, drawing an AMAZING car and getting everyone out by smashing straight through the cave rocks.

"Yeah! We DID IT! WOOHOO!"

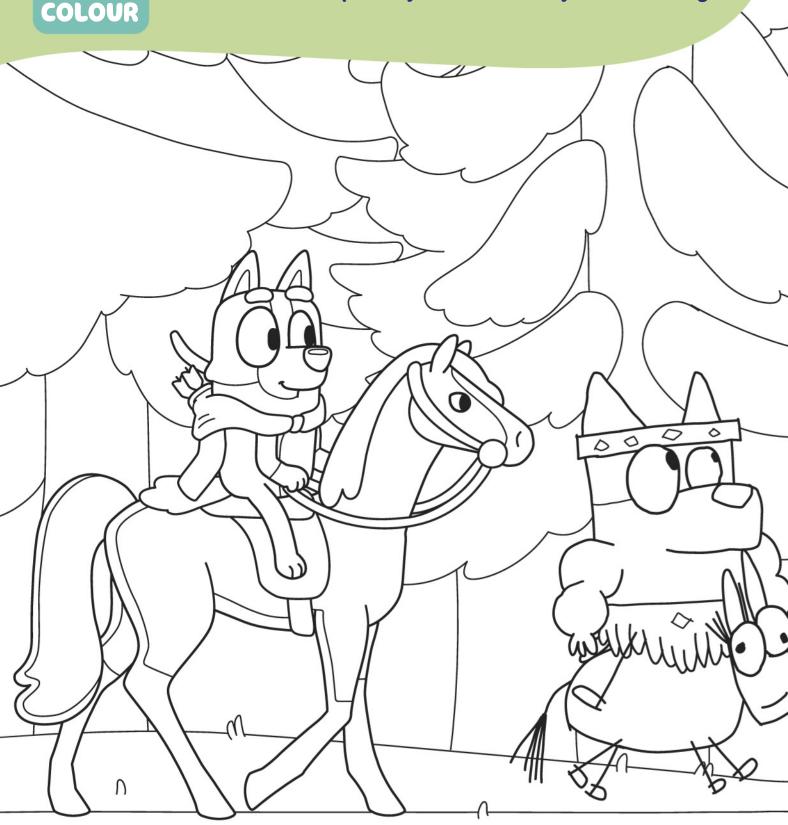

Mum says thank you to her beautiful horse and they all watch as she flies away.

Roll the heads into smaller loops and tape shut. Then curl the antennae (feelers!) around a pencil and glue them on top of the heads.
